

It is the height of folly to allow cross-ownership of media outlets. The essence of our freedom of the press is the ability to hear and read a range of views. Acquiring the means of transmitting these views is already difficult. To make it easier for the few who have access to control all access is dangerous.